Fatal Accident in Construction Work on New Southbound Railway.

Railway.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

WINSTON-SALEM. N. C., November 16.—A terrible catastrophe occurred here this morning about 10 o'clock, when 4,000 cubic feet of earth caved in on the viaduct being erected on the line of the new Southbound Railway two miles south of this city, killing six and wounding one. The dead are: Lesso Freastand, of Iredell county, and Carnal Builing, Stokes county, both of this State, and Carl Dottch-schmidt, Carl Ebner. — Leibman and Aifred Lippner, of Germany. Oscar Mise, of Norfolk, Va., was slightly injured. The men were working on building a foundation for the abutment of the trestle, and a pile of earth 30 feet high in front is said not to have been sufficiently braced, and caved in. While others were attempting to rescue them there was a second cavelin, and the laborers were caught in the trap. The force started rescuing line bodies immediately, and the first was got out in thirty minutes and the last after it o'clock. None was mulliated, and death was caused by suffocation. The force had to brace the earth with powerful supports while working.

The county coroner appeared on the scene and at once summoned a coroner's jury, but no inquest was held; and, as the majority of the men are foreigners, it is not improbable that the Inquest will be postponed until a representative from their government can get here. The bodies were taken to an undertaking establishment and practically every dotor in town went out to aid in the rescue work. The Germans were brought here recently by an employment agency in New York, and the grief of their comrades at the undertaking establishment was pathetic.
